

Post-Pandemic Politics: Perspectives and Possibilities

(online conference, 30th June 2021)

Call for Papers

It has been more than a year since the far-reaching and devastating effects of the COVID-19 pandemic made their appearance in the world. In response to these global challenges, national governments have introduced various restrictive measures and were compelled to adapt their respective public policies and administration to these new circumstances. Though our global combat with the virus may yet be far from its end, still one may already see the green shoots of recovery. But what shall the post-pandemic world of politics look like? The conference invites contributions to approximate this very question by seeking to explicate the most probable scenarios for post-COVID politics and public administration. Submissions addressing the following topics are especially welcomed:

- * COVID's challenges to democracies
- * new perspectives of eGovernance
- * new societal challenges to public administration
- * fiscal and monetary responses, relief measures
- * global politics in a post-pandemic world
- * EU politics in a post-pandemic world
- * ethical dilemmas in public administration and policy-making

Keynote speaker

Raphael Cohen-Almagor, University of Hull

Important dates

Deadline for abstract submission: 31st May 2021.

Deadline for notification of acceptance: 15th June 2021.

Conference: 30th June 2021.

Abstract submission

Proposals must contain an abstract of 300 – 500 words prepared for blind review and, in a separate file, a brief CV of 100 – 200 words. All proposals must be submitted to pgaf@uni-nke.hu

The Conference is convened by the Eötvös József Research Centre of the University of Public Service, Budapest and the Editors of Public Governance, Administration and Finances Law Review.

(<https://folyoirat.ludovika.hu/index.php/pgaf/about>)

Principal contact: Ákos Tussay (Tussay.Akos@uni-nke.hu)